Lindsay says:

"The Free Church of Scotland has not in any, way committed harself to the Broad Church notion that part of the Bible is the word of God and part is solt he holds firmly by the authority and infallibility of the Holy Scripture. The Free Church of Scotland has not denied her old confession; but she has declared practically, if not formally, that criticism and dogma are not antagonistic things; that critical freedom may co-exist with dogmatic orthodoxy."

The United Presbylerian says:
"Our good brother, Dr. Clark, of the Methodis Recorder, is trying the 'coals-of-fire' theory on Colonel Robert Ingersoll, and makes in a recent number a strong plea for milder and more charitable treatment of unbelievers generally. We admire the spirit of Brother Clark, and acknowledge the force of his plea in behalf of the power of our religion, or, rather the power of God through it, to subdue the proudest and most incorrigirather the power of God through it, to subdue the proudest and most incorrigible sincer. But there is such a thing as to so despise God, so dely his authority and abuse his mercy, as to be given up to an evil heart of unbelief. We may not take on ourselves to decide when or in what case God so deals; but when we set a man, in the light of these days, persisting and glorying in his restilings of God and of everything sacred in his name and his worship, we certainly have reason to lear that he has been given up to the devices of his own heart and fruits of his own ways."

A lady who hit upon an ingenious method of amusing her children on Sun-day, thus describes it: I have often found nday rather a tiresome day for the ildren, it is so difficult to make the day full of pleasure and still have their enjoyments of such a character that they shall feel that it is indeed the Lord's day shall feel that it is indeed the Lord's day My little gris have been very much interested for the last two Sabbath in making a Sunday clock. I facey I hear you say, "What is that?" Well, cut a circle out of carboard, make a neat small circle in the center and fasten on hands made of gill paper, then commencing with one, find texts of 'Scripture' containing just as many words as the bour indicate, for instance, I, "Loves," 2, "Jesus wept;" 3, "Trust in God," etc. My children are making one now for their grandpa; it is to be full of comforting texts, and we will call it a "comfort clock."

Bishop Smith, of Kentucky, who is also the Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, resides permanently at Hoboken. At the last session of his Diocesan Convention he asked for a continuance of permission to reside outside of the diocese, on the ground that the antinuance of permission to reade outside of the diocese, on the ground that the accumulating duties of the Primus require that the Presiding Bishop reside at one of the great centres. Bishop Smith expressed the opinion that the provincial system should be adopted. The convention regretted that they were not able to grant the Bishop's request on the ground on which he placed it. It was creating a new order of things, to which the Diocese of Kentucky was not prepared to accede, thus giving the idea of wasted ammuni-tion. The people have gone home disan-isfied with the specific results of the meeting, perhaps whistling to keep up courage, and them follow, after a little, long periods of stagnation in the local churches. Who will rescue the camp meeting from the hands of its friends? The time may not be far distant when the annual feast of tabernacles shall be, in every district, after the style of the Chau-tauqua and Thousand Isle pattern."

Concerning Dr. McCosh's assertion that a man may not hold new opinions in the old churches, the Christian Union ways: This doctrine of Protestant infallibility at least it would be, if it were as heartil at least it would be, if it were as heartily accepted and as logically carried out. For the doctrine of the papacy provides for the possibility of progress. It declares all which the Pope has done is infallible; but it provides a living Pope to do other infallible; things in the future. It assumes that there is a living Spirit of God, who shides, if not with the church universal, at least with the heirarchy. The doctrine of Protestant infallibility swears allegiance to a dead Pope, denies the promise of the Master. "The comforter shall teach you all things," and buries promise of the Master. "The comurre-shall teach you all things," and buries the Holy Ghost in the tomb of Jesus and the wisdom of the church in the sepul-chres of the fathers.

With the Pleasure-seeker, the Emidie, Western Southern or the Gulf coast resorts, the next question after settling where to go, is, how to go. The convention, however, permitted the Bishop to reside out of the diocese on the diocese of the theoretic principle of the ground on which he originally placed it—that of increasing age and infarmities.

At the recent annual meeting of the Tunkers, held at North Manchester, Indian, a request was presented asking the Council to condemn "urb bythins is a house" as without the authority of the Scriptures. Mr. D. Gibbon explained the case on which the request was founded, as follows:

"An afflicted lady made application for baptism.
